1. Nagpur Session (1920) of the Indian National Congress

December 1920 At the Nagpur session of the Indian National Congress

- The programme of non-cooperation was endorsed.
- An important change was made in the Congress creed: now, instead of having the attainment of self-government through constitutional means as its goal, the Congress decided to have the attainment of Swaraj through peaceful and legitimate means, thus committing itself to an extraconstitutional mass struggle.
- Some important organizational changes were made:
 - ✓ a Congress Working Committee (CWC) of 15 members was set up to lead the Congress from now onwards;
 - ✓ Provincial Congress Committees on linguistic basis were organized;
 - ✓ Ward Committees was organized; and entry fee was reduced to four annas.
- Gandhiji declared that if the non-cooperation programme was implemented completely, swaraj would be ushered in within a year.

2. 5 Important Things about Lord Curzon

- Famine of 1899-1900 occurred during Curzon's tenure as Viceroy.
- He appointed:
 - ✓ Famine Commission under Sir Anthony McDonnell.
 - ✓ Commission on Irrigation under Colin Scott Moncrieff.

Other Important Commissions under him

- ✓ Police Commission under Andrew Frazer.
- ✓ Education Commission / Raleigh Commission.
- Created the North West Frontier Province in 1901.

- Curzon sent a British expedition to Tibet under Francis Younghusband in 1903.

- Curzon was expecting Russian advances from Tibet. Treaty of Lhasa was signed in September 1904.
- Curzon presided over the 1905 partition of Bengal.

Curzon-Kitchner Controversy

- Lord Kitchener took over as Commander-in-Chief of the British Indian Army in 1902.
- He changed the Indian armed forces from a colonial army meant for annexation into a professional army capable of holding its own in any modern war.
- There was duality of control as Viceroy's Council had a member responsible for the armed forces.
- Kitchner wanted Commander-in-chief to be that member.
- Curzon refused.
- British Cabinet seemed in favour of Kitchner leading to Curzon's resignation.

Extra

- Curzon Oversaw the following important Acts:
 - ✓ Indian Universities Act, 1904.
 - ✓ Indian Coinage and Paper Currency Act, 1899.
 - ✓ Calcutta Corporation Act, 1899.
 - ✓ Ancient Monuments Protection Act, 1904.

Some more

- Following announcement of Partition of Bengal:
 - ✓ Rabindranath Tagore led the marches at many places.
 - ✓ He composed many patriotic songs, most famously 'Amar Sonar Bangla' (now the national anthem of Bangladesh).
 - ✓ Patriotism and Bengali nationalism also showcased in Jatras, or popular theatre.

3. The Red Fort

- Emperor Shah Jahan commissioned construction of the Red Fort on 12 May 1638, when he decided to shift his capital from Agra to Delhi.
- Originally red and white, its design is credited to architect Ustad Ahmad Lahori, who also constructed the Taj Mahal.
- Unlike other Mughal forts, the Red Fort's boundary walls are asymmetrical to contain the older Salimgarh Fort.

- The fortress-palace was a focal point of the medieval city of Shahjahanabad, which is present-day Old Delhi.
- Shah Jahan's successor, Aurangzeb, added the Pearl Mosque (Moti Masjid) to the emperor's private quarters
- When Jahandar Shah took over the Red Fort in 1712, it had been without an emperor for 30 years. Within a year of beginning his rule, Shah was murdered and replaced by Farrukhsiyar. Muhammad Shah, known as 'Rangila' (the Colourful) for his interest in art, took over the Red Fort in 1719.
- In 1739, Persian emperor Nadir Shah easily defeated the Mughal army, plundering the Red Fort, including the Peacock Throne.
- The internal weakness of the Mughal Empire made the Mughals titular heads of Delhi, and a 1752 treaty made the Marathas protectors of the throne at Delhi.
- In 1760, the Marathas removed and melted the silver ceiling of the Diwan-i-Khas to raise funds for the defence of Delhi from the armies of Ahmed Shah Durrani.
- In 1761, after the Marathas lost the third battle of Panipat, Delhi was raided by Ahmed Shah Durrani.
- In 1783 the Sikh Misl Karor Singhia, led by Baghel Singh Dhaliwal, conquered Delhi and the Red Fort.
- Baghel Singh, Jassa Singh Ahluwalia and Jassa Singh Ramgarhia all allied with a 40,000 force and Plundered the area from Awadh to Jodhpur. They destroyed Mughal supremacy and made them pay Rakhi Tax.
- In 1788, a Maratha garrison occupied the Red fort and Delhi alongside providing protection to the Mughal Emperor.
- Mahadji Scindia signed a treaty with the Sikhs where they were warned not to enter Delhi or ask for the Rakhi tribute.
- The Marathas lost the Fort to the British East India Company following the Second Anglo-Maratha War in 1803.
- During the Second Anglo-Maratha War, forces of British East India Company defeated Maratha forces of Daulat Rao Scindia in the Battle of Delhi; this ended Maratha rule of the city and their control of the Red Fort.
- After the battle, the British took over the administration of Mughal territories and installed a Resident at the Red Fort.
- The last Mughal emperor to occupy the fort, Bahadur Shah II, became a symbol of the 1857 rebellion against the British in which the residents of Shahjahanbad participated.
- After the rebellion failed, Bahadur Shah II left the fort on 17 September and was apprehended by British forces. Bahadur Shah Zafar II returned to Red Fort as a British prisoner, was tried in 1858 and exiled to Rangoon.
- With the end of Mughal reign, the British sanctioned the systematic plunder of valuables from the fort's palaces. All furniture was removed or destroyed; the harem apartments, servants' quarters and gardens were destroyed, and a line of stone barracks built.

- While the defensive walls and towers were relatively unharmed, more than two-thirds of the inner structures were destroyed by the British. Lord Curzon, Viceroy of India from 1899 to 1905, ordered repairs to the fort including reconstruction of the walls and the restoration of the gardens complete with a watering system.
- Most of the jewels and artwork of the Red Fort were looted and stolen during Nadir Shah's invasion of 1747 and again after the Indian Rebellion of 1857 against the British.
- They were eventually sold to private collectors or the British Museum, British Library and the Victoria and Albert Museum. For example, the jade wine cup of Shah Jahan and the crown of Bahadur Shah II are all currently located in London.
- The INA trials, also known as the Red Fort Trials, refer to the courts-martial of a number of officers of the Indian National Army. The first was held between November and December 1945 at the Red Fort.
- On 15 August 1947, the first prime minister of India, Jawaharlal Nehru raised the Indian national flag above the Lahore Gate.
- A significant part of the fort remained under Indian Army control until 22 December 2003, when it was given to the Archaeological Survey of India for restoration.
- In April 2018, Dalmia Bharat Group adopted the Red Fort for maintenance, development, and operations, per a contract worth ₹25 crores for a period of five years, under the government's "Adopt A Heritage" scheme.
- The memorandum of understanding was signed with the ministries of tourism and culture and the Archaeological Survey of India (A.S.I.). Following the deal, Dalmia took over control of the fort's light and sound show.
- Under the contract, Dalmia will have to engage in development by restoring, landscaping, providing basic amenities, and arranging for battery operated cars, amongst other things.
- It can charge visitors an admission fee following clearances from the ministries.
- That revenue will go towards the fort's maintenance and development.
- Dalmia's brand is also to be visible under the contract; it can have its name on souvenirs that are sold and on banners displayed during events at the fort.
- The Lahori and Delhi Gates were used by the public, and the Khizrabad Gate was for the emperor.
- The Lahori Gate is the main entrance, named for its orientation towards the city of Lahore, leading to a domed shopping area known as the Chatta Chowk (covered bazaar).

Diwan-i-Aam –

- This was a place for the official affairs of commoners who sought after legal matters such as tax issues, hereditary complications. The Diwan-i-Aam was also used for state functions.

Nahr-i-Bihisht

- The imperial apartments consist of a row of pavilions on a raised platform along the eastern edge of the fort, overlooking the Yamuna river. The pavilions are connected by a canal, known as the Nahr-i-Bihisht ("Stream of Paradise"), running through the center of each pavilion. Water is drawn from the Yamuna via a tower, the Shahi Burj, at the northeast corner of the fort. The palace is designed to emulate paradise as described in the Quran.

Diwan-i-Khas

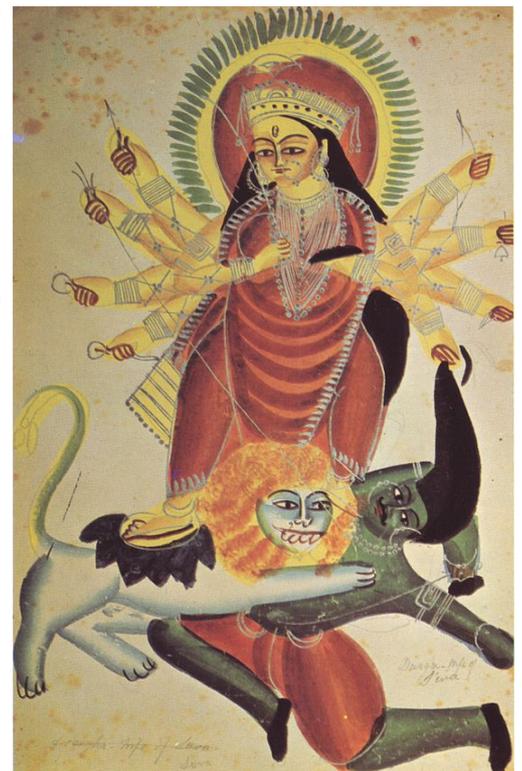

- This was a building for the official affairs and requests of the novelty and royal family. A gate on the north side of the Diwan-i-Aam leads to the innermost court of the palace (Jalau Khana) and the Diwan-i-Khas (Hall of Private Audience).
- It is constructed of white marble, inlaid with precious stones. The once-silver ceiling has been restored in wood. François Bernier described seeing the jewelled Peacock Throne here during the 17th century.
- At either end of the hall, over the two outer arches, is an inscription by Persian poet Amir Khusrow,

If heaven can be on the face of the earth, It is this, it is this, it is this.

- (Gar firdaus bar-rue zamin ast, hami asto, hamin asto, hamin ast)

4. Kalighat paintings

- Kalighat painting or Kalighat Pat originated in the 19th century in West Bengal, India, in the vicinity of Kalighat Kali Temple, Kalighat, Calcutta,
- They have over a period of time developed as a distinct school of Indian painting.
- From the depiction of Hindu gods, god, and other mythological characters, the Kalighat paintings developed to reflect a variety of subjects, including many depictions of everyday life.
- In the 19th century, the only school of painting that was flourishing in Bengal was the traditional art of scroll paintings that was popular in the rural areas. These paintings were done on cloth or patas.
- They depicted conventional images of gods and goddesses and scenes from epics like Tulsidas' Rama Charita Manas.
- The artists were villagers who travelled from place to place with their scroll paintings and sang the scenes from the epics depicted in the paintings during village gatherings and various festivals. These artists, called patuas or 'painters on cloth'.
- The British, having established themselves in the country politically started to evince interest in art, literature, and music. They set up institutions that imparted a European style of academic training to Indian artists. The Calcutta School of Art was one such school and attracted traditional artists—the patuas—to the city.

- Initially, these artists were concentrated around the temple at Kalighat where there was a demand for religious art. Gradually, they started to learn from the newer techniques and discovered that these could help them increase their earnings. They started creating new forms of art and the Kalighat painting was born.
- The Kalighat artists did not restrict themselves to religious themes. Their paintings depicting different professions and costumes were also popular with tourists. Even contemporary events like crime were the subject of many paintings.
- The artists also chose to portray secular themes and personalities and, in the process, played a role in the Independence movement.

5. Kangra School of Painting

Introduction

- Painting in the Kangra region blossomed under the patronage of a remarkable ruler, Raja Sansar Chand (1775–1823).
- Raja Sansar Chand established supremacy of Kangra over all surrounding hill states. Tira Sujampur emerged as the most prolific centre of painting under his patronage.
- An earlier phase of Kangra kalam paintings is witnessed in Alampur and the most matured paintings were painted at Nadaun, where Sansar Chand shifted later in his life.

Features

- The Kangra style is by far the most poetic and lyrical of Indian styles marked with serene beauty and delicacy of execution.
- Characteristic features of the Kangra style are delicacy of line, brilliance of colour and minuteness of decorative details.
- This imaging delicacy and fineness of the line was achieved by the use of fine brushes made from the hair of squirrels.
- Most popular themes that were painted were the Bhagvata Purana, Gita Govinda, Nala Damayanti, Bihari Satsai, Ragamala and Baramasa.
- Many other paintings comprise a pictorial record of Sansar Chand and his court.
- Painting depicts ideas and values which guided life in society, sentiments and passions pictured in the language of brush and color make our experience rich and sensibilities sharp.
- The Kangra painters made use of pure colors like yellow, red, and blue and these have retained the brilliance, even after two hundred years.

- The series of Bhagvata Purana paintings is one of the greatest achievements of Kangra artists.
- It is remarkable for its effortless naturalism, deft and vivid rendering of figures in unusual poses that crisply portray dramatic scenes.
- Fattu, Purkhu and Khushala are important painters of the Kangra style.

Other details

- During Sansar Chand's reign, the production of Kangra School was far greater than any other hill state.
- He exercised wide political power and was able to support a large studio with artists from Guler and other areas.
- The Kangra style soon spread from Tira Sujampur to Garhwal in the east and Kashmir in the west.
- Painting activity was severely affected around 1805 when the Gurkhas besieged the Kangra fort and Sansar Chand had to flee to his hill palace at Tira Sujampur.
- Depiction of Ashta Nayikas or eight heroines is one of the most painted themes in Pahari paintings, involving the depiction of women in various dispositions and emotive states.
- The Baramasa paintings, consisting of 12 folios, illustrating the modes of love or courtship appropriate to each month of the year had become a popular theme in the hills during the nineteenth century.
- In Kashmir (1846–1885), the Kangra style initiated a local school of Hindu book illumination. The Sikhs employed other Kangra painters eventually.

6. The Rajasthani Schools of Painting

Kishangarh School of Painting

- The term 'Rajasthani Schools of Painting' pertains to the schools of painting that prevailed in the princely kingdoms and thikanas of what roughly constitutes Rajasthan and parts of Madhya Pradesh in the present time, such as Mewar, Bundi, Kota, Jaipur, Bikaner, Kishangarh, Jodhpur (Marwar), Malwa, Sirohi and other such principalities largely between the sixteenth and early nineteenth centuries.

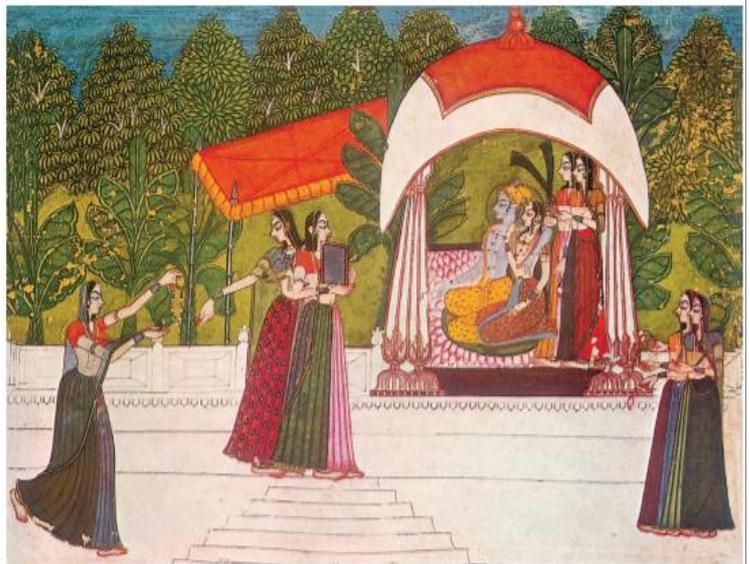

- Though separated by short distances, the pictorial styles that emerged and evolved in these kingdoms were significantly diverse in terms of either execution—fine or bold; preference of colours (brilliant or gentle); compositional elements (depiction of architecture, figures and nature); modes of narration; affinity for naturalism—or had emphasis on extreme mannerism.
- Paintings were painted on waslis—layered, thin sheets of handmade papers glued together to get the desired thickness.
- The outline was sketched on waslis in black or brown followed by colours fixed therein by brief notations or sample patches.
- Colour pigments were predominantly obtained from minerals and precious metals like gold and silver that were mixed with glue as the binding medium.
- Camel and squirrel hair were used in brushes.
- On completion, the painting was burnished with an agate to lend it a uniform sheen and an appealing resplendence.

Themes of Paintings

- By the sixteenth century, Vaishvanism in the cults of Rama and Krishna had become popular in many parts of western, northern and central India as part of the Bhakti movement that had swept the entire Indian subcontinent.

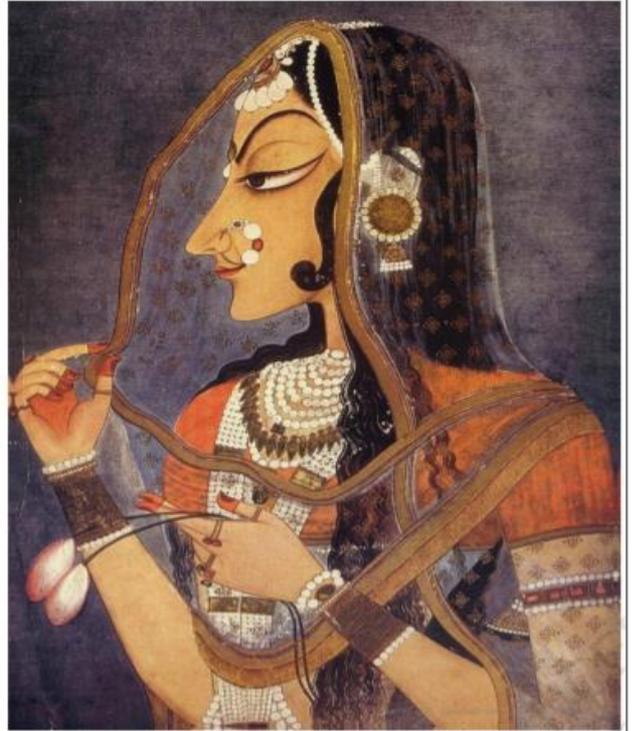

Kishangarh School of Painting

- Kishangarh paintings are distinguished by their exquisite sophistication and distinct facial type exemplified by arched eyebrows, lotus petal shaped eyes slightly tinged with pink, having drooping eyelids, a sharp slender nose and thin lips.
- Kishan Singh, one of the sons of the king of Jodhpur, founded the state of Kishangarh in 1609. By the mid-seventeenth century under the patronage of Man Singh (1658–1706), artists were already working in the Kishangarh court.
- A distinctive style of the state with a general tendency to elongate the human form, making lavish use of green and penchant for depicting panoramic landscapes had evolved by the early eighteenth century during the reign of Raj Singh (1706–1748).
- With Raj Singh getting initiated into the Pushtimargiya cult of Vallabhacharya, Krishna Lila themes became personal favourites for the rulers of Kishangarh and represented a major portion of their court art.
- Sawant Singh's most celebrated and outstanding artist was Nihal Chand.
- Nihal Chand worked for Sawant Singh between 1735 and 1757, and composed paintings on Sawant Singh's poetry that portrayed the theme of divine lovers—Radha and Krishna.

Bani Thani

- Sawant Singh composed devotional poetry on Krishna and Radha in Brajbhasha under the pen name Nagari Das.
- He is said to have been passionately in love with a young singer, who was accorded the title 'Bani Thani', the bewitching lady of fashion, because of her unparalleled beauty and elegance.
- She was an attendant of Raj Singh's wife and a gifted poetess, singer and dancer.
- Bani Thani was Sawant Singh's muse for the poetry he wrote, celebrating the love of Radha and Krishna.
- He writes about her in a poem Bihari Jas Chandrika, which became the basis for Nihal Chand's painting of Bani Thani, thus, representing a blending of poetry and painting.
- Troubled by fratricidal conflict, Sawant Singh, eventually, abdicated the throne in 1757 and retired to Vrindavan along with Bani Thani.
- The exaggerated facial type of Kishangarh, which becomes the distinctive and salient stylistic feature of the Kishangarh School, is believed to have been derived from the attractively sharp facial features of Bani Thani.
- Artist Nihal Chand is attributed with the credit of contriving this exquisite and characteristic Kishangarh physiognomy that is perceived in figures of Sawant Singh and Bani Thani is always represented as Krishna and Radha in brilliantly coloured, panoramic landscapes.
- Radha's face in Bani Thani as Radha is unique in her deeply curved eyes, exaggerated arch of the eyebrows, pointed nose, serpentine curl of hair spiralling down the cheek, thin lips and pronounced chin.
- This particular painting is in the collection of National Museum, New Delhi.

7. Rogan School of Art

About

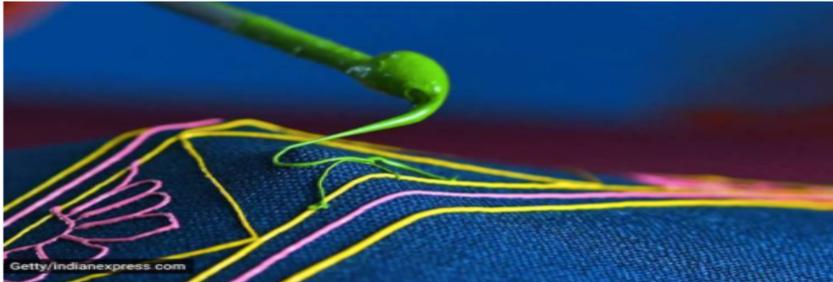

- It is an art of cloth printing practised in the Kutch District of Gujarat, India.
- In this craft, paint made from boiled oil and vegetable dyes is laid down on fabric using either a metal block or a stylus.

Dying crafts of India: Into the world of colourful Rogan textile art

Initially, Rogan graced mainly ghaghra-cholis, bridal trousseaus, bedsheets, and tablecloths but they now adorn more contemporary items

- The craft nearly died out in the late 20th century, with Rogan painting being practiced by only two families in the same village.

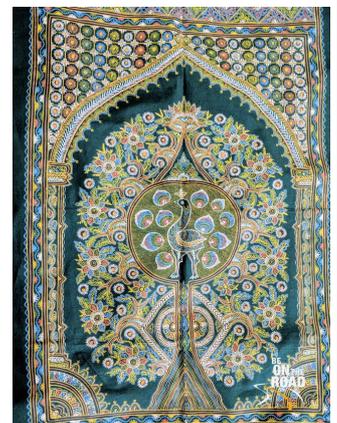

Resurgence of the Art

- In 2014, PM Narendra Modi visited the US White House and gave President Obama two rogan paintings including “A Tree of Life”.
- “Tree of life painting” or “Kalp Variksha” is a famous work of Rogan school of Art.

Process

- Rogan Art is produced by boiling castor oil for about two days and then adding vegetable pigments and a binding agent, thus the resulting paint is thick and shiny.
- The pattern is applied using metal blocks with patterns carved on them.
- Elaborate designs are produced freehand, by trailing thread like strands of paint off a stylus.
- Unique feature - half of a design is painted, then the cloth is folded in half, transferring a mirror image to the other half of the fabric. The designs include floral motifs, animals, and local folk art.

10.Pathrughat Peasant Uprising

Context

- Type - Peasant Uprising which took place on January 28, 1894 in Assam.
- Reason - Against the increase in land revenue levied by the colonial administration, when the military opened fire.

Historical background

- British Annexation of Assam happened in 1826, surveys of land were done throughout the length and breath of the country
- In 1893, British Government decided to increase agricultural land tax by over 70-80 %.
- Earlier the peasants were paying the taxes in kind, but now the British Government made it mandatory to pay in cash , which led to further resentment.
- Across Assam, peasants began protesting the move by organising Raji Mels, or peaceful people's convention
- Although the gathering in Pathrughat was emocratic, but the British perceived them as “Breeding grounds for sedition” and opened fire.
- One of the few occasions in the history of the pre-Congress, pan-Indian anti-imperialist movement, when, in the absence of a well defined leadership, the masses organised themselves to resist the autocratic designs of the British.

Present Situation

- Today a “martyrs column” stands where the incident took place – Patharughat, a small village in Assam’s Darrang district, 60 km northeast of Guwahati.

11.Gyanvapi Mosque

About

- Located in Varanasi, Uttar Pradesh, India.
- It is said to be constructed on the site of Kashi Vishwanath temple, which had been demolished by the Mughal Emperor Aurangzeb in 1696.
- It is administered by by Anjuman Inthaazamiay Masajid.

Historical Backgrounds

- Built during the reign of Aurangzeb in 1669 CE.
- According to scholar Madhuri Desai, the mosque was built on the plinth of the former temple.
- The remnants of the Hindu temple can be seen on the walls of the Gyanvapi mosque.
- The demolished temple is believed by the Hindus to be an earlier restoration of the original Kashi Vishwanath temple
- The temple structure that existed prior to the construction of the mosque was most probably built by Raja Man Singh during Akbar’s reign.
- The temple's demolition was intended as a warning to the anti- Mughal factions and Hindu religious leaders in the city.

Present Situation

- Maulana Abdus Salam Nomani (d. 1987), an Imam of the Gyanvapi mosque, contests the fact that a temple was destroyed to build the mosque.
- According to him, the foundation of the mosque was laid by the third Mughal emperor Akbar, and Akbar's grandson and Aurangzeb's father Shah Jahan started a madrasah called Imam-e-Sharifat at the site of the mosque in 1048 hijri (1638-39 CE).

Additional Information

- Around 1750, The Maharaja of Jaipur commissioned survey of the land around the site, with the objective of a purchasing land to rebuild the Kashi Vishwanath temple.
- This survey showed showed that the edges of the rectangular Gyanvapi mosque precinct were lined up with the residences of Brahmin priests.
- Describing the site in 1824, British traveler Reginald Heber wrote that “Aulam Gheer” had defiled a sacred Hindu spot and built a mosque on it. He stated that Hindus considered this spot more sacred than the adjoining new Kashi Vishwanath temple.

Temple Ruins

- A Temple Structure can be seen at the mosques real wall, long believed to be a remnant of the original Kashi Vishwanath temple.

Gyan Vapi Well

- The mosque is named after a well, the Gyan Vapi ("the well of knowledge"), which is located within the mosque precincts.
- The legends mentioned by the Hindu priests state that the lingam of the original temple was hidden in this well, when the temple was destroyed.

2021 Legal Case

- On 8th April 2021, a court in Varanasi city ordered the Archaeological Survey of India to conduct a survey of the Gyanvapi Mosque.
- The court's ruling runs up against the Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991, which states that any place of worship shall be maintained as it existed on 15 August 1947.
- This is an unconscionable intervention that will open the floodgates for another protracted religious dispute.

Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991

- It prohibits the conversion of religious places of worship as it existed at the time of Independence.
- The Act was passed in September 1991, over a year before the demolition of the Babri Masjid (1992).
- Section 3 of the Act bans the conversion of a place of worship or even a section of it into a place of worship of a different religious denomination or of a different segment of the same religious denomination.
- The Act also imposes a positive obligation on the State to maintain the religious character of every place of worship as it existed at the time of Independence.

Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991, Exemption

- The disputed site at Ayodhya is exempted from the Act. Due to this exemption, the trial in the Ayodhya case proceeded even after the enforcement of this law.
- The Act also does not apply to any place of worship which is
- an ancient and historical monument or an archaeological site covered by the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act, 1958.
- Penalty: Section 6 of the Act prescribes a punishment of maximum three-years imprisonment along with a fine for contravening the provisions of the Act.
